BUILDING A SCHOOL

In 1983 a new addition to our high school was finally started after many years of planning. It contains a gymnasium, two classrooms, home economics, industrial arts, band classrooms, and a cafeteria/auditorium. Many days were spent in class listening to drilling, hammering, and earth moving equipment. Other major improvements in the existing older building have caused great inconvenience to the students and teachers. Among these were the restrooms in which only a couple were available, an all new heating system that left many rooms cold until adjustments could be made, and continuous class interruptions by workmen needing to make measurements. Through many long months of hassle and inconvenience of our school grounds being a construction site, we have watched the transformation to better facilities take place as the work was completed.

CAREER DAY

Another Learning Experience

Career Day is something everyone looks forward to. Last year we enjoyed it for the second time. Mrs. E. Bailey and Mrs. G. Viger worked very hard organizing it and contacting speakers. Some of the careers discussed were: Beautician, Physical Chemist, Computer Repairman, Pilot, Photographer, Medical Technician, Model, Theatre Arts Director, Telephone Installer, Sports

Referee, Architect, Lawyer, Warehouse Specialist, Social Worker, Stock Broker, Recruiter, Bartender, and many others. The students had an 8 class day; so everyone had a briefing on 8 different careers. All students learned about new careers and look forward to next year's Career Day.

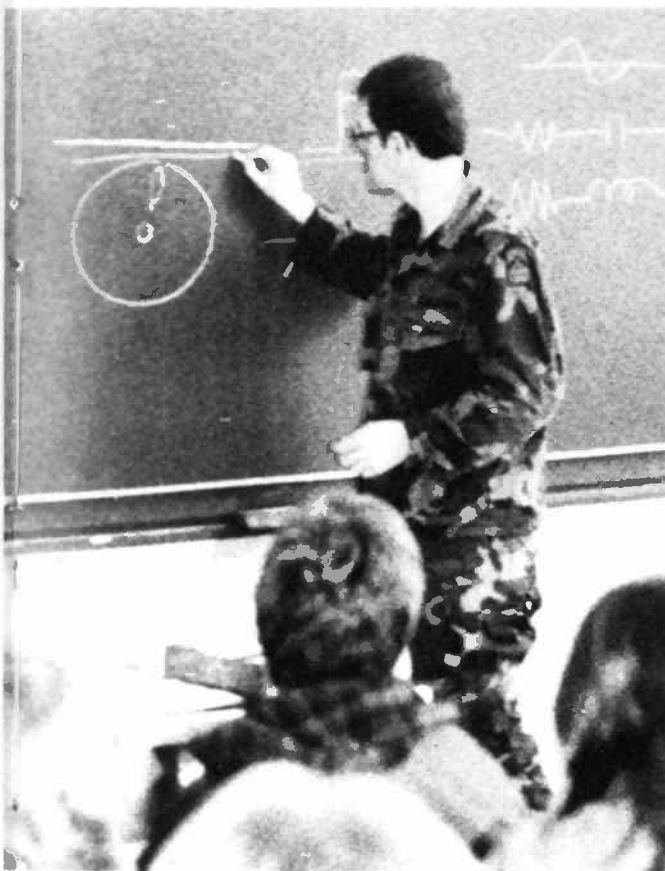

Monique Radcliffe has been teaching dance classes for many years now. She teaches to the French, Americans, and Germans. With the help of a few dancers, both French and Americans, she was able to show the students some basic steps in dance. The dance students she brought ranged from the ages of 3 to 17. To make things even more interesting she took some people out of the audience so they could try to do some steps. Both hours the class ran were full. We hope to see Monique back next year.

SFC Race spoke on a job he had as a city planner. He informed the students on: what he did as a city planner, specific things city planners do, and things that go with the job. Most of the students didn't come to this class out of interest for city planning. However, all of the students ended up listening and commenting. Everyone left with a feeling that they had learned something. SFC Race gave a very interesting briefing.

One speaker for Career Day was from the German Police force. His name is Herr Hinze and he informed the group about new laws and regulations for cars and bikes. One of his topics seemed to interest a lot of the students in the class. This topic concerned the use of BMX bikes on German roads. He hopes more Americans will familiarize themselves with some of the German laws so fewer accidents would occur.

THE WEEK

The DODDS Outdoor Education Program offers lots for students to learn outside the classroom. Some tasks were met with resistance and lack of enthusiasm, but in the end students learned they could accomplish what they really desired if they all worked cooperatively. They also faced some realities about themselves and how they worked with others.

Despite the hardships of surviving the rigors of outdoor living, most students wanted to return this year.

Top: Ralph Baker, Lisa Beuerman and Mike Lord learn what "Hiking, Hiking, Hiking" is all about. Left: The group of 30 attempted to stay together during the long and wandering path up the Jenner Mountain. Overnight in a Mountain Hut offered the rest needed for the trip down.

SKIING WITH A REDHEAD

My Dad and I checked into the campgrounds at Lauterbrunnen, Switzerland, early in the evening. We then ran into friends of ours. Mr. Ridgeway and his two daughters, Heather and Diette, were also staying at the campgrounds. We all went to a restaurant and had a beer. Diette and I decided to ski together the next day. I knew Diette was a good skier because she's skied most of her life. However, I thought I was better. I figured guys were better than girls in every sport. Since I've skied seven years myself, I knew I could dust her on the slopes.

The next day we all rode the train up the ski resort called Kleine Scheidegg. It was a beautiful clear day and the Eiger Mountain looked dominating as ever. Diette and I skied down to the chairlift together. I ended up down the mountain first and Diette a close second. We both got off the chairlift and I stopped to put my pole straps around my wrists. When I finished I looked up and she was gone already. I skied down the same slope and there she was waiting for me. We then went up lift after lift with her always outskiing me down the run by at least three to five minutes. Never had I been pushed harder or humiliated worse than when I skied with that crazy red head. Now I realize girls can be better than guys in some sports.

— Jim Florreich

THE FALL

As I looked down the long empty street a wave of regret washed over my body. I knew I should have waited for the bus, but as usual I grew impatient. I glanced at the sky and noticed a huge black cloud which made the night even darker. I started on my trek home wishing there was someone with me to make me feel secure.

Just as I remembered leaving my umbrella at work it started to rain. Not a drizzle, but a downpour. I then decided to take a shortcut through the back streets. By this time I was nervous. When I passed by an alley I heard a loud bang that made my heart jump and my stomach turn. I let out a sigh of relief when I discovered it was only an alley cat digging for food in the trash cans.

I continued on my way and saw a group of men come out of a bar. They started coming my way so I altered my course and ran down another street. I couldn't see too well through the rain and as I was running I ran into someone. He was wearing a long black raincoat and a hat which shadowed his face, but when the lightening danced across the sky I could see his face. It wasn't a pleasant sight. He had a scar on one cheek and dark, glaring eyes. I was so scared I couldn't move. Something inside me told my body to move and move fast. As I ran I thought I heard the thumping of footsteps behind me. I ran faster looking for a place to hide. My heart was pounding and my lungs ached.

I finally found an old condemned building and entered it. That was a mistake in itself. I didn't want to turn back so I ran up the flight of stairs and tripped over something. It was too dark to see, but I kept climbing all the stairs until I got to the top. I went to an open window and looked down at the street to see if that man was still there. He wasn't. I began to think it was all my imagination and laughed at my stupidity. I turned around and there he was. The same man was standing right in front of me. I wanted to scream, but it never left my throat. I wanted to run, but there was nowhere to go. Before I could come to my senses I was pushed out the window. My scream escaped too late and all I could feel was myself falling. Falling down to the street where no one would care who I was or what happened to my body. As the last window flashed past me something snapped and I was now in my bed lying in a pool of sweat.

PEP RALLY!

These pictures were taken at the first pep assembly in our new high school gymnasium. At this pep rally, the winter sports teams were introduced. The cheerleaders cheered, and the band played. The crowd roared, and everyone yelled for his class. A good amount of school spirit was demonstrated. We are very happy to have our own gymnasium for the Karlsruhe Knights!

Gold Bubbles

There I was, sitting in my room of bubbles. These aren't your ordinary bubbles, no siree-bob-these bubbles turn into gold after four years. I have been watching them for three years and nine months, slowly every day now you can see the transformation. I have to keep a close eye on them, because if one of these are damaged that is it for all of them.

Days passed slowly for two and a half months. Everyday I was checking them, counting, checking, and recounting. I figure after 73 years of life in a low income family, I deserve to be rich. Oh, yes, I almost forgot my cat. What a fun little animal. He comes in with me everyday, but is careful not to touch any of the bubbles.

My cat hasn't been feeling well today, I hope the poor thing will be alright. I really don't know what I'll do without him.

It came time, the day of success on wealth. I must check these bubbles before 4:00 o'clock then once again when they are done at 4:00 o'clock. They were all there. At 4:00 o'clock they were done. Or at least I thought. I was thinking GOLD, I was going to be rich, after all of these years.

But my cat was even worse. He seemed to get worse the closer to the day when I would be rich. Then that day was here, he got worse with the minutes. I don't understand it. I called a veterinarian, he said nothing was physically wrong with him. It all hapened when I started to get excited about the gold. The vet suggested that it could have been that the cat was afraid of losing me to the wealth that I had acquired.

I now realize that you can't buy love with wealth. It must be earned. I told my poor cat that it would still be the same as before. He came back to life. I still love him to this day. My money is in a safe and has never been touched except for the basics that I or my cat needs.

My Heart Punished Me

My heart troubled by a haircut,

Blasting sounds a hairdryer makes,

Most prized possession taken away,

Ugly thoughts cross my mind.

You destroyed

An everlasting work of art.

My heart turned three colors with madness,

Blue,

For thinking of some dominating idea.

Red,

For not fighting this strange thought.

Yellowish brown,

For there is still hope for it to grow back.

Time

Where has my life gone?
Did it fade away, with the sun at dawn?

My life it is leaving,
With no accomplishments, to me pleasing.

My crimes are slowly tearing me apart,
Leaving shreds of a torn, bleeding heart.

The clock it is slowly ticking away,
All I once loved, fades into the day.

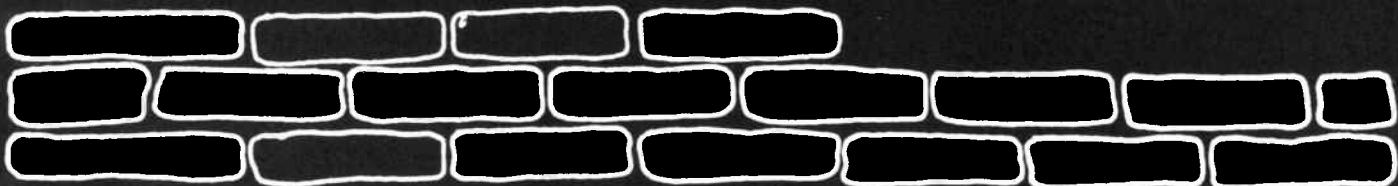

My weeping soul is left not at peace,
But crying in desperation for forgiveness and release.

The innocent child which I have killed,
Lies embedded in dirt, her dreams unfilled.

The time of truth has finally come,
My problem shall be solved with the slip of a gun.

Oh God, forgive me of my terrible crime,
But because I took a life, my own is not worth a dime!

Memories

As I look back on the memories,
Of my high school years.

I see images of loving friendships,
From which I will never part.

But now, I must move on,
To fulfill my obligations to myself and society.

I leave not with a whimper,
Nor a tear in my eyes.

But with a feeling of accomplishment,
And with my head held up high.

I would like to thank all those,
Who helped me through all my trials.

When I was in need,
And who helped me reach my goals.

For if it were not for them,
I would still be falling in an endless hole.

And the words spoken for my sake,
I can not express my gratitude.

For I only hope you,
Will once again understand.

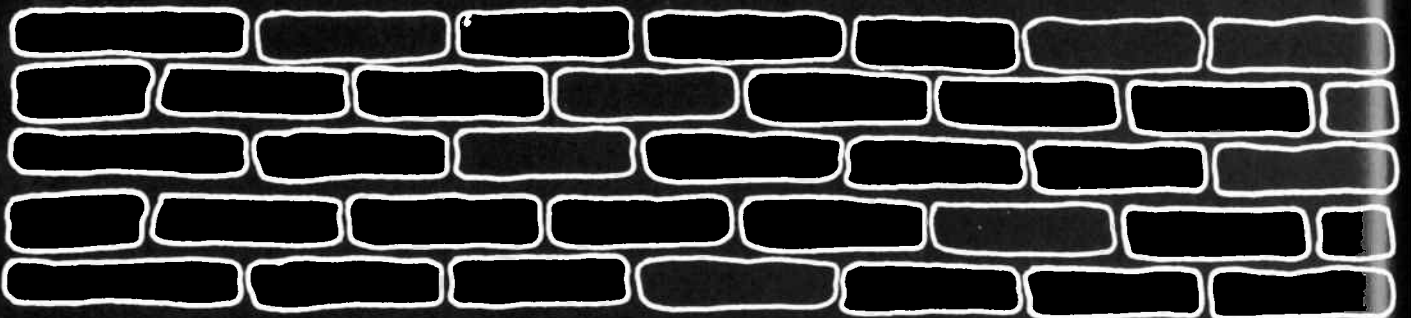

There is more to high school,
Than just leaving marks and memories.

It has prepared me for a purpose,
Toward life, which I now must take.

I have but one wish,
Before I leave:

To be remembered not for what I was,
But for what I can be.

The Sophomore class of 1984-1985 got off to a great start this year. They worked hard to raise money with different fund-raising activities. Some of these activities included: having bake sales, selling Berliners, and selling spirit buttons. They sponsored the Christmas Dance on Dec. 8, which was a great success. They also sponsored the Graduation Reception in the Spring. They are looking forward to their Junior year with enthusiasm.

Sophomore Class Officers: Sponsor, Mrs. Johnston; President, Laurie Gilmore; Vice President, Etta Olivo; Secretary, Tammy Broadway; and Treasurer, Cindy Coffee.

The Freshman class has been busy with various projects since the beginning of the school year. October was bake sales and Spirit Grams to pay for Homecoming flowers and crowns. Then in January, during Spirit Week, many people participated in Clash Day, Costume Day, Hat and Shades Day, and Black and White Day. They also spent lots of time decorating the Freshman Hallway. All the work and effort paid off when they were awarded the Spirit Stick at the Pep Rally.

We experience competition through our sports. We learn to compete and improve our physical beings.
To the right is someone who excelled in competition.
Nena Gage earned the title of European Track Champion.
She gave our school
something to be proud of.

All conference players Scott Bennett and Eddie Gonzales were awarded Most Valuable Players. Scott Mitchell was Most Inspirational and Stefan Stroebel, Most Improved.

The 1984 Tennis team, coached by Mrs. R. Scheibe-Lewis and Mr. J. Morris, was one of the leading teams in Germany. The scores speak for themselves.

The men's team was made up of several experienced players. They were: Billy Fisher, James Florreich, James Fabbo, Donie Riseden, Rudy Godley, and Justin Townsend, who remained undefeated the entire season. They all proved to be extremely competitive. The Women's team, on the other hand, had many newcomers. They were: Nicola Khalaf, Joey Hickman, Caroline Williams, Amy Fisher, Laurie Gilmore, and Sandra Riseden. These women also completed a successful season.

The KAHS Tennis team changed its reputation. They "turned over a new 'tennis racket'!"

THE CHEERLEADERS OF KHS

Cheerleaders are an important part of the sports program at KHS. You may think "What good are they?" Have you ever been to a football game where there were no cheerleaders? They cheer on the players and give them support. This year the cheerleading sponsor was Pam Warms, who is a teacher at KAES. The coach was Ann Roberson.
